ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am so grateful and indebted to Prof. Cornelia Römer. Since 2013, I have been a student of Prof. Römer when I joined her Greek and Papyrology courses at Ain Shams University. Since then, I have been overwhelmed by her generosity both with her time and with her effort. Besides ancient Greek, Prof. Römer supported me in taking a series of English and German courses. In 2018, she honored me by agreeing to supervising my PhD dissertation as the first Egyptian student to get this honor. Many views and conclusions that had been reached in this work are a result of long discussions with her during: the courses at Ain Shams, the car rides from the University to her house in Zamalek, the long excavations' seasons in Fayum, and the long online talks after the breaking out of the Pandemic. I also thank her for correcting the English. Indeed, mere words cannot express my gratitude to her, and cannot express her positive effect on both my career and my private life as well.

Special thanks are offered to my godfather, Prof. Ibrahim El Gendy. He adopted me since my appointment as a teaching assistant in the Faculty of Arts, Ain Shams University. He has always been so generous with his time and effort, and his library has always been available to me. For two years and a half, I exhausted him with so many questions and discussions. I thank him so much for his careful reading of this work once and again, and for his very helpful remarks and corrections.

I also wish to express my deepest gratitude to Prof. Charikleia Armoni for the very helpful discussions with her when I was in Cologne, Autumn 2019. Her suggestions were very crucial at the early beginnings of this study, and she drew my attention to several points and references that were of a great importance to fulfill the current work. I would like also to thank Prof. Jürgen Hamerstaedt, Dr. Robert Daniel, Prof. Klaus Maresch, and many others in the Institut für Altertumskunde-Philosophische Fakultät-Universität zu Köln, and its library for their kindness and generosity during my stay at Cologne. From Cologne University I would also like to express my gratitude to Dr. Eleni Skarsouli for making available to me her PhD dissertation. I am also thankful to Nico Dogaer from KU Leuven; discussing with him the problematic questions of monopolies in Ptolemaic Egypt either in Lecce, Italy during the 29th International Congress of Papyrology, 2019, or by E-mail was very helpful.

I am also grateful to Prof. Elsayed Roshdy and Prof. Hassan Ahmed- whose support is unfailing since the undergraduate stage- for accepting evaluating this study; their corrections and remarks will be of a great help to enhance this work. My gratitude goes also to Prof. Mostafa Zayed, to whom I am very much indebted since I first met him in the preliminary year of Masters, 2013.

I wish to thank my colleagues in the Center of Papyrological Studies and Inscriptions at Ain Shams University: Prof. Noha Salem, Dr. Rasha El Mofateh, Ms. Eman Selim. Special thanks are due to my colleagues in the Department of History, Faculty of Arts, Ain Shams University: Dr. Hady Attia, Dr. Sherif Emam, Dr. Omar Ibrahim, Dr. Mahmoud Abdullah, Dr. Samer Qandeil, Dr. Mahmoud El Batran, Ms. Nadia Zagzoug. I would also like to thank Mr. Ahmed Abdul Azim from Monufia University and Dr. Hani Omar from Fayum University.

I am deeply grateful to my mother and my brother for their continuous support. All gratitude goes to my beloved wife for her unfailing support, my deepest apologizes to her for being busy all the time.
